The club is open to students of all levels, freshman through senior. The club meets every Friday after school when moderators teach basic programming and then allow members to create their own programs or to play games. The club also takes field trips. This year they visited the Adler Planetarium. The Computer Club enters weekly contests where the students are given a problem and have to write a program to solve it. The club offers fun and excitement to its members.

Mapping Out A Flight Plan

The Guidance Department is a student service facility. Under the direction of Mr. Richard Melka, counselors are always available to help students who are experiencing difficulty in their courses. Equally important to the students is the department's help with scheduling classes, ACT/SAT testing, career testing, hosting of visiting college representatives, and financial aid and one-parent family workshops. This year an Apple Computer was obtained to provide more college and career information for upperclassmen.

Looking Out the Window

Social Studies provide the students with a clear view of the world around them. Students are encouraged to discover their rich cultural heritage as well as that of others. This is accomplished by studying the past and present events in modern history that have formed the world as we know it. U.S. and World History, World Cultures and Geography are some of the courses offered by the department.

Guided Toward Being A Better Student

The purpose of the Guided Study Program is to help students improve their regular study habits. Students in this program spend one period of their day under the tutelage of the director of Guided Study, Mr. Joe Callahan. Students work individually or in small groups on homework in other classes and ask for assistance when needed. The goal of the Guided Study Program is for students to achieve a level of competence which allows them to eventually study efficiently on their own.

Control Systems

The computer plays an important part in completing tasks more quickly and efficiently. At St. Joe's the computer is used for attendance and tuition records, weekly Mission totals, and the Fall Fund Drive. The curriculum allows students to learn the BASIC and FORTRAN computer languages on an elementary and advanced level.

Chargers on the Go!

An important part of the curriculum at St. Joe's is the Physical Education Dept. Students are required to take two years of P.E. Among the activities students participate in are football, softball, basketball, soccer, wrestling, floor hockey, volleyball, and weightlifting.

During lunch periods, freshmen and sophomores also compete in an intramural program. Under the direction of Mr. O'Brien, championships are sought by homerooms in numerous sports.

Choosing One's Direction

Students look forward to choosing elective courses as upperclassmen to add to their journey. Among these courses are Typing, Business Law, Accounting, Foreign Language, Film Study, Speech, Computer Science, Band, Chorus, Technical Drawing, Photography and Art. Each course contributes to enriching the students' creative talents.

Advancing Toward The Future

The fields of Science and Mathematics gain more and more significance each day. At St. Joseph's students take two years of science and three years of math. Besides the required Biology course, the Science Department offers chemistry, physics, physiology, ecology and health. Courses in math include algebra, geometry, trigonometry and analysis. Both departments encourage students to pursue their talents in a related technological career.

Blessed Are Those Who Give

The weekly Mission Collection is an important part of the Christian service dimension of St. Joseph High School. Contributions are taken up during homeroom every Tuesday to help support a Christian Brothers mission school in Guatemala. Brother Charles Jones, a former missionary himself, and Brother Christopher Buck coordinate the weekly collection.

To Live Forever

"As Catholics, we believe in achieving eternal life and that some day we will live forever with God. We will live our lives and be remembered by our families, co-workers and friends and then all earthly memories will fade away. Few of us can hope to achieve the status of a Thomas Aquinas or a Blaise Pascal or a Descartes."

These few lines will remind us, however, that a Christian Brother lived among us for a time and influenced all the people in this school in some way. Brother Damian Reser made no great impact on society, never wrote any great literary work and never altered the course of history. Nevertheless, all of us have been changed by this man, confined to a wheel chair for years and months in his own right, a peasant, uncomplicated, looking on others deeply enough to see the need for the missions, concerned for people who would never know anything about his own problems. Brother Damian exemplified the true man with struggles and sufferings but it triumphs in his spirit.

In spite of his restricted existence, Brother Damian lived a certain degree of nobility. As long as this school exists, those who are present here, the teachers will remember Brother Damian and will be passing on children, and grand children that such a man once lived and suffered, enjoyed some triumphs, and involved himself with God and humanity to the fullest of his capabilities.

He was not yet a saint, but one struggling as we all are. Brother Damian will live forever in our minds and in the thoughts of those with whom we share our memories.

Mr. Gene Leboyce
